

COIN'S Dogs, one of the best-known standard animal acts in the whole realm of vaudeville, will be the headline offering today, tomorrow and Tuesday at the Orpheum Theatre, Third Avenue and Madison Street, when six new acts of Transcontinental Vaudeville are made known to Manager Eugene Levy's thousands of regular patrons.

Coin's Dogs, trained and educated to the minute, will appear in a satire on village life, "It Happened in Dogville." The actors are all dogs, and they put on a one-act playlet that is a scream.

Tom Brantford is another performer who has played the big circuits of the country, billed as "The One-Man Band."

Welp and Cassini, "The Crazy Vaudevillians," offer comedy, song and dance of good quality. The Gemini Sisters, with exceptionally pretty costumes, will present novelty and fancy dancing; George Wheeler plays ten instruments, and Reeves & Reeves have entertaining comedy.
